Livingston County Celebrates National County Government Month

Geneseo, NY, April 22, 2019— Livingston County is celebrating National County Government Month (NCGM) in April to showcase how the County connects residents and inspires community pride.

The themes for this year's NCGM is "Connecting the Unconnected," demonstrating how counties deliver "people-centered" services, connect communities and inspire civic pride.

The featured County event offered during the month of April is the Annual Livingston County Community Clean Up on April 27-28. County residents will get a chance to showcase their civic pride by volunteering to clean up public parks, Town and Village Halls and other public spaces.

"Here in Livingston County, we are proud to offer our residents many great programs and services," said County Administrator Ian M. Coyle. "Our efforts, combined with those of Counties across New York State and the nation are helping communities thrive. I encourage all of our residents to take advantage of National County Government Month to learn about all the great programs and services we offer."

Since 1991, the National Association of Counties (NACo) has encouraged counties across the country to raise public awareness and understanding about the roles and responsibilities of counties.

Among the many ways Livingston County strives to “Connect the Unconnected” include:

- Preventive health screenings, immunization and mental health services offered by the Department of Health;
- Mini Job Fairs and job search assistance through the Office of Workforce Development;
- Road patrol and public safety from the Sheriff’s Office;
- Storm and disaster management from the Office of Emergency Management; and
- County-operated ambulance through Emergency Medical Services.
